

Genius: It is Simpler than you Think

People believe that being a creative genius is something that only a few are born to. This is just another limited belief humanity has bought into.

Genius, like all human potential, is something that we can easily tap into and is simply latent (sleeping) within us waiting to be utilized.

The habit of making things complex is how most human beings live their lives. We live in a society where almost no one uses their intuitive "gut instincts".

If the universe is made of pure intelligence as all physicists and spiritual teachers say...then we like the cows, have access to that pure natural intelligence also...we know exactly what we need to live our lives!

Einstein related that he did the math afterwards to prove the theory of relativity after he did a simple visualization where he saw that objects can be still and in motion relative to each other; He visualized a man holding his body still as he falls off of a roof - relative to the house he is in motion. But if he is not moving his body as he falls - his body is not in motion relative to himself.

This simple realization led to a fundamental understanding of how all objects in the universe relate and how all of creation correlates. All fundamental ideas are this simple when properly viewed from awareness.

It was a simple mental exploration that led to the complex math that was required to validate this simple concept. So, genius exists in all of us if we simply quiet the mind and get in touch with the simplicity of it as Einstein demonstrated.

Physicists now know that there is a field of pure intelligence and creativity that is the foundation of all of creation. This field is pure awareness. Creative people know that this field is lively within their own mind once they still the redundant chattering of repetitive, automatic thinking.

Edison meditated in stillness daily as he explored ideas.

Learning to still the mind to experience the deep silence of the field of pure intelligence and tap into creative genius is something anyone who wants to succeed and prosper should surely learn to practice!

In fact there are little known ways to integrate this silent field of pure creative intelligence into the human brain and physiology to the degree that it is a person's normal operating state...a sense of deep, silent, blissful peace and clarity with alert, sharp, dynamic, clear thinking...we call this state enlightenment."
